

LOCKDOWN BLUES

Its been months since i have been stuck in the lockdown blues looking around the house for clues to my isolation.
watching the ticking of the clock, tick tock on the wall
waiting for my boardom to fall, off the scale of 1 - 10
No access to internet, no netflix to watch like some people do!!
in splendid isolation I sit and contemplate my fate
2nd lockdown blues, people masked up keeping their distance, covid ninjas!!
Feeling like a new world out in public, 'keep away from me' the fear is tangible.
What to expect next, when can we all meet up, when can we hug again???
questions unanswered, media confusion, Government advice day after day doom and gloom abounds suspicion is rife taking the fun out of life.
When will this all end? Nobody knows!
its the lockdown blues.
